Case for Paper and String. Few things are more useful in any old than a convenient case that will held paper and string ready for immediate use when needed. To make such a case buy one yard of denim, one skein of white linen flese, one piece of tape, an inch wide, and one one-half-Inch tape; also, eight rings. Cut two pieces of denim

The cretonne may be bought for 22c, the cord for 10c, and the hoops for 5c.

Combing Sacque.

A dainty combing sacque that can be easily and quickly made is in the form of a square with a small circle cut out at the center. Materials required for it are a yard of white batiste and three-fourths of a yard of colored batiste. Cut a thirty-six inch square from the white batiste. Cut a piece out for the backs. Make a slit from the neck to the end of one corner, this to serve as the opening in the front. This leaves a point coming directly

For the blotter, cut a piece of paste board, 18x12 inches and cover one side with cretonne or chintz or plain cloth of any good color. The chintz can be turned over at each end or embroidered strips can be applied so that they will form a strap to hold the ends of the blotting paper underneath.

Spool Case.

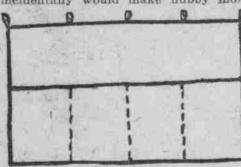

The materials that will be needed for making a spool case like the one illustrated, are one-sixth of a yard of fiveinch flowered ribbon, which will cost five cents; one sixth of a yard of white satin ribbon which will cost seven cents; one and one-half yards of narrow ribbon, costing six cents; and three spools of cotton, 60, 70 and 80 which will cost 15 cents. Total cost 33 cents. Cut out four pieces of cardboard like

Then take a flower-covered cardboard and a satin one and over-band together. Do the same with the other two. Take the spools and place them between the cardboards, being sure to have them range from the largest to the smallest. Pierce through the cardboards and spools to be able to connect with fibbon. Then the narsettes are tied at each end of the case, a daintier spool case would be hard to find. This makes a most acceptable present to any woman friend who is a

Slipper Case.

The man whose wife is fond of waiting on him and who thereby rather "spoils" him, sometimes finds it difficult to know just where to keep all guardian and caretaker is away from home. He is especially liable to find his slippers smissing when he come home in the evening. Of course, if his wife were there, he would know exactly where to find them, since it is her pleasure to pick them up whereever he may leave them, whether be in the bath room or at the foot of the bed or in other places and then put them in a certain place where it is most convenient for him to slip them on when he comes home. If the careful little wife could institute a gentle measure of training she would save herself a good many steps and incidentally would make hubby more self-reliant. If she were to begin with the slippers it might not be bad idea to have a slipper case, tack-ed inside the closet door, and to gently insinuate to her husband that th silppers will not go in the case un-less he puts them there. The same system of training might be tried on the boys, which will eventually make things easier for their wives to be. For the woman who wants to try this gentle method of persuading has husband to keep his things in order the accompanying diagram shows a model for a very convenient slipper case. This has two small pockets for should be about four inches wide Thus there will be needed a piece of cretonne or other stout cloth, sixteen a curtain cord of a color to match the material and an embroidery hoop, either round or oval.

AN OFFICIAL RUN UNDER RIGID RULES

Remember, this was an official run. Cars were sealed; observers of other makes of competing cars were with our drivers whenever they were near the cars. Penalties were given for inoperative starters, tire blowouts, burned-out electric bulbs, loose nuts, &c. Steering gear play, spring sag, battery tests, body rattle and defects of any kind prevented cars from perfect scores.

It was the most strenuous test from the stand-point of a technical examination to which automobiles have ever been subjected in this country.
